Russia's dummy-piloted space ship was clearly visible in Marin skies this morning—for those who got up early enough.

One such was Lowell Beach of 25 Grove street, San Rafael, who reported watching the space ship for about a minute, starting at 4:18 a.m., as it zoomed north-northeast across the heavens.

The ship, which appeared globular in shape, became dimmer as it neared the horizon, Beach reported.

The five-ton satellite was "as bright as the brightest planet" when midway in the sky, said Beach. Although actually travelling at something like 28,000 miles per hour, its speed at its great distance from the earth appeared "twice as fast as a jet plane flying at 20,000 feet," he said.

The Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory in Cambridge, Mass., reported today the Russian space ship should again be visible over this area from 4:37 to 4:39 a.m. tomorrow.

PARIS (A)-Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev insisted today there can be no summit conference unless the United States apologizes and punishes those responsible for the U2 flight.

"We won't attend a conference as long as the Americans will not give us satisfaction," he said.

He made his stand three times today-in two informal interviews and in a statement issued through the Soviet Embassy. The United States, meantime, showed no sign of meeting the Soviet leader's demands by going beyond President Eisenhower's disclosure Monday that U.S. spy flights over the So-

CBS Opposes Compulsory TV Time Bill

Frank Stanton, president of Columbia Broadcasting System, told a Senate committee today that his company opposes a bill that would require giving prime television time to presidential candidates.

Dr. Stanton said CBS was prepared to provide a minimum of one hour of prime evening time each week for debates and discussions by candidates during the coming campaign if present laws were modified, but is opposed to legislation to compel networks to furnish free time.

Stanton oppeared before the Senate Communications Subcommittee in its second day of hearings on the TV time bill.

Mayor Vows Riot Won't Happen Again

SAN FRANCISCO (P) - The riot between police and demonstrators against a hearing of the House Un-American Activities Subcommittee cost the city "about $250,000," Mayor George Christopher estimates.

.If the subcommittee ever returns to San Francisco, Christopher said yesterday, it should meet in a federal building, not City Hall. Then "they can use the Army if necessary.

Twelve persons were injured in the clash and 64 were arrested.

"It is not going to happen again," Christopher asserted.

Christopher received a call from Tass, the Soviet news agency, which asked him for comment on the riot.

"I told them it was just a student demonstration and that it had been greatly exaggerated in the press," he said.

Jazz Workshop In Marin City Planned By YWCA

Marin YWCA will hold a Jazz Workshop for young adult and teen-age residents of Marin City Friday, May 20, at 7:30 p.m. and a meeting open to all Marin City residents Thursday, May 26, at 2:30 to 4 p.m. Both events will be held at Marin City

Jazz enthusiast Lulu Carter will present a history of jazz, illustrated by popular recordings, at the Friday evening session. The program is free All Marin City residents and their friends are invited.

Next week's Thursday afternoon program is second in a new series of weekly do-it-yourself fun programs designed especially for housewives but open to everyone in Marin City. At the first session, members decided to learn how to make attractive ashtrays from inexpensive materials, which will be provided at minimal cost. Members will discuss the kinds of program they wish to have at future Thursday meetings.

Those attending are welcome to bring their friends - and also their children. A baby-sitday afternoon sessions so mothers will be free to enjoy themselves.

Each Spring A Sad Story Starts A Dangerous Season

Each Spring a news story breaks that we detest. Each Spring it signalizes the start of a period which we know means destruction, suffering and even death. And each Spring we deplore again the carelessness and negligence which brings it about.

That story appeared a few days ago. It told of the first forest fire of the season in California. This particular fire wasn't in Marin County, we're happy to say. It was on the shores of beautiful Lake Almanor in Plumas County and destroyed, along with a hundred acres or so of virgin forest, at least one home; many other homes were saved.

We wish we could think up some new and impressive way of depicting to the public the stark horror of a forest fire; the intense heat, the speed of the leaping flames, the pathetic plight of the agonized birds and wild animals-battling for their lives, the awesome grandure of a crown fire leaping along the tops of the trees faster than man or animal can run and turning the ground below into an insufferable oven, the blackened, stark remains after the flames have departed.

It is difficult, here in Marin where our hills are still green, to think that danger of fire already is upon us. But there are evidences that this may be one of our most dangerous years.

Rainfall throughout the state was only about 80 per cent of normal this year; the snow pack in the Sierra is well below usual, and the seasonal runoff of the streams is only about 70 per cent of average.

All of this means that our hills and valleys are going to be drier, sooner than usual. With last year also having been an exceedingly dry year, the potential for serious fires this year is multiplied.

This all adds up to just one thing: Starting now, please be doubly careful when you are in the out of doors. A carelessly tossed match, an automobile backfire, an untended campfire, or a cigarette butt can start a catastrophe.

Please, Mr. Weatherman

The United States Weather Bureau, perhaps out of instincts of self-preservation, has recently changed its traditional method of reporting wind velocity predictions from miles to knots.

Now, we don't even know where high fog ends and low clouds begin, but we do know what a mile is. Most people have cars and are familiar with speeds in miles. Thus, when the Weatherman starts giving wind velocities in knots, he is destroying a simple pleasure for many of us who are too lazy or too ignorant to do the necessary arithmetic to change them to miles.

However, lest we give the false impression that we are down on the Weatherman generally, let us hasten to add that he has a thankless task and often gets blamed. Some people seem to think he makes the weather, especially when it is bad.

One recent innovation, that of making odds on the chances of rainfall, appeals. It is always fun to try to out-guess the Weatherman, whether you are a weather-sniffer or a barometer-reader.

ACT YOUR ROLE WELL

A veteran actor fell dead just a moment after he made his exit into the wings of a Boston theatre. For 54-year-old Louis Heydt, Act I, Scene I of "There Was A Little Girl" was his final curtain.

The only one aware of what had happened was a fellow actor who came to his aid. The other members of the cast were not told of their colleague's death until the end of the performance.

The audience found out about it in their papers the following morning.

It is difficult for any of us to imagine ourselves making our final exit. But make it we Viewed in its proper perspective it should be a stimulating thought, not a grim one. The part we play, brief and insignificant as it may seem, is important in God's sight.

If we use our talents to honor God and benefit others, our final exit will be a triumphant entrance into heaven.

The Los Angeles action is a case in point only. The board assessed a $3 nominal semester fee for only certain courses. It eliminated payment by students under 21, and oldsters over 65. The decision to assess any fee at all was a close one, 4-3.

But it is an indication that bor's children, all under 4 at least some California school years of age, and take them boards are waking up to the to the zoo. Corte Madera And Larkspur Are Giving Break To Hopeful Artists and Corte Madera.

Arriving on my new beat bright and early Monday morning and following my usual routine of trying to pry my eyes open with black coffee, I found myself astride a break. stool in Tia's, a restaurant next door to the I-J Corte Madera office.

Instead of the customary restaurant decor of signs urging customers to watch their hats and coats, September Morn calendars and the usual notice to take it easy on the ketchup, I was greeted by a tastefully hung exhibit of original oil paintings.

THROUGH MY sleep-dulled eyes I made out the signature of the artist, one Edwin Dur-

I was told by the proprietors of the eatery that he is from Mill Valley and that he has actually made a cash sale as a result of the exhibitwhich I recall as a rare and happy occasion during my own days as a starving artist.

I also learned that neither Estherella Crist nor Bonnie Margolis, the proprietors, cooks, bookkeepers, bottle, washers, broom pushers and hostesses in Tia's, are artists themselves, but merely like to give those who do paint a helping hand.

"We like to feel we are creative about our food," Bonnie explained.

AT THE OTHER END of the main drag which connects the two towns, the Lark Theater has long maintained a policy of hanging works of local artists in the lobby.

UNTIL THE FEDERAL Art Project came along in the 30's to give a shot in the arm to thousands of the country's painters, muralists, graphic artists and sculptors, there was precious little opportunity to show one's work except to landlords who occasionally peered into the studio to see that the tenants weren't cooking in the closet.

Of course, there were the big, respectable museum shows, well guarded by colorblind judges who thought Whistler's "Mother" was the living end of creativity. And the other alternative, one-man shows in private gallerys operated by dealers who wanted only a pint or so of the artist's blood for each painting

UNION RULING DUE

Precedent Pointed Out In Controversial Case

with them.

By LYLE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON (UPD-Guest columnist for today will be Charles P. Taft of Cincinnati, Taft read in this column that the U.S. Supreme Court had agreed to decide what is called the Looper Case which came up from Georgia.

The Looper case represents an effort by a few employes of the Southern Railway to protect what they regard as their constitutional rights. These employes are suing to prevent their union from spending dues money for political objectives which these employes oppose. This is a union shop situation. If the employes refuse to pay union dues they lose their membership and also their jobs. If they pay dues, the union leaders spend some of the money for political objectives which are distasteful to some of the members who supplied the funds.

Taft can take it from here: "DEAR MR. WILSON:

"In connection with your piece on the Looper Case, the House Lords (court of last resort in England) held that political contributions could not be made from (union) dues.

"By the Act of 1913, Parliament provided that funds of unions shall not be used for political objectives without a ballot of members by a majority of those voting, and payment must be from a separate fund from contributions to which any member is exempted by 'signing out.'

"In 1927, after the (British) General Strike, this act was amended to provide for 'signing in,' that is, no contribution without an affirmatively signed card.

"In 1945 when the Labor (Socialist) party came back in, they promptly restored 'signing out' and the Tories (conservatives) have not bothered

"I sent Cliff Case (Republi-N.J.) and Jake Javits (Republican Sen. Jacob K. Javits, N.Y.) the (legal) references on these things, but I don't believe they did anything

"Sincerely yours, "CHARLES P. TAFT "P.S. We are a bit behind the times on this."

TAFT IS A LAWYER, the son of William Howard Taft, 27th President of the United States, and a brother of the late Sen. Robert A. Taft. Lawyer Taft evidently is more alert than are Senators Case and Javits to the importance of the Looper Case. The importance is this, that the opinion which the U.S. Supreme Court now is committed to make probably must establish as the law of the land either: That a union member cannot be compelled to contribute toward political expenditures which he opposes, or;

That such an individual or minority group is without constitutional protection against such compulsion.

A U. S. SUPREME Court decision for the complaining union members either would invalidate the union shop or compel union bosses to finance their political activities wholly from voluntary contributions.

Legislators who are comparatively soft on labor will be getting the word soon if the court rules against the labor bosses.
